THE POWER OF STEAM.

Many May See But It Takes Genius to Realize.

When James Watt saw the steam causing the kettle lid to jump up and down he said "There must be power in that steam that it can lift such a weight."

There was.

Millions prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.

Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Dandruff, Falling Hair, and consequent Baldness, and has unearthed a tiny germ which eats the life from the roots of human hair.

Newbro's Herpicide destroys this germ and consequently restores the hair to its natural state.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

SPEECH OF SENATOR DUBOIS

Delivered in Christ Church, Alexandria, February 22, 1906, on the 174th Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington.

At the memorial and patriotic services held at Christ Church yesterday under the auspices of Mt. Vernon Chapter, D. A. R., addresses were delivered by Rev. R. H. McKim, of Washington, and Senator F. T. Dubois, of Idaho. The addresses were eloquent, interesting and instructive and were greatly enjoyed by all present.

The rector of the church, Rev. W. J. Morton, announced that the Bible from which the lesson was read and the prayer book used in the service today were the identical ones used in the service during the colonial days, when Gen. Washington worshiped there.

Rev. Randolph Harrison McKim, a former rector of the church, but at present of Epiphany Church in Washington, was the first speaker. He said that he was not present to speak of Washington, as the iron soldier, the skilled strategist, the incorruptible patriot or the wise statesman, but as a Christian man who, all through his life, threw the weight of his influence into the scales for religion.

Among other things Rev. Mr. McKim said that when orators all over the land were praising Washington as the soldier and the patriot, the church could come forward and speak of him as a true servant of the living God. He portrayed Washington as a Christian, his firm stand against the tidal wave of infidelity which was spreading over the country in his time and his exertions toward suppressing gambling and swearing in the continental army.

The following is the full text of Senator Dubois's address:

Reverend Sir, Ladies and Gentlemen: It is very fitting that we should turn aside from the ordinary pursuits of our busy lives to do honor at recurring intervals to the works and memory of those who have founded and helped maintain our republic. It is well that as the years go by more attention is given to the remembrance of the mighty achievements of Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln and, first of all, Washington. It is well that the lessons of their lives should be taught to American citizens everywhere throughout the length and breadth of our land. This hallowed place where Washington attended divine service, this old Christ Church, known and revered throughout the world, cannot but inspire one with a deeper interest in all which pertains to the life and character of our first President. A knowledge of the life of Washington keeps the fire of patriotism burning brightly and a familiarity with the incidents connected with the early struggles of our forefathers for liberty and a republican form of government, leads us imperceptibly towards higher ideals and a firmer determination to keep and make the government of our day worthy of its beginning.

I gladly pay tribute to the Daughters of the American Revolution, who are today throughout the United States following the example of the Mt. Vernon Chapter in fittingly commemorating and calling attention to the patriotic services of the Father of our Country. While he is being eulogized in almost every city of the United States, there is no spot so closely connected with the personal life of Washington as Alexandria and this edifice. The people of the United States, now living, have a direct interest in Mount Vernon and in this church. There has not been much change since Christ Church was completed in 1765, at which time George Washington was made one of the first vestrymen and was the first pew holder. Owing to the constant and arduous efforts of the patriotic women of this nation, this locality and Mount Vernon have become soil and the mecca to which hundreds of thousands of people journey every year. Every pilgrim to these shrines is inspired with loftier conceptions of his duty to his country. He appreciates more the legacy bequeathed him, and solemnly resolves to be worthy of citizenship in this glorious republic, to establish which its founders endured so many privations.

The description of Washington which was given him by his contemporaries and which has been handed down to us: "First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen," is literally correct. The more closely you study his character, the more impressed you are with the fact that he was the real and the deserving, as he was the the acknowledged leader of the great men of his time. He was surrounded by men of surpassing ability, a great many of whom he was inferior to intellectually. Most of these great men were superior to him in individual traits of character, yet in a combination of qualities which go to make greatness, he was easily the superior of all. When you recall his associates, among whom were Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, James Madison, Samuel Adams, James Monroe, John Hancock, John Adams Patrick Henry, Benjamin Franklin, Edmund Randolph, Gouverneur Morris, Richard Henry Lee, and many others, whose images crowd into your memory, you cannot but wonder that each and all of these greatest of men, not only acknowledged his supremacy, but demanded his leadership. Washington was not ambitous as compared with his associates, Hamilton, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, John Adams and with those other great men who have adorned our history, like Jackson, Lincoln and Grant. He was reluctant to accept the presidency the first time, and much more so the second time, greatly preferring the quiet of Mount Vernon.

In reading the debates which attended the drafting of our constitution, I am constrained to believe, that unless the patriots of that day had succeeded in inducing George Washington to preside over the deliberations of the constitutional convention this immortal document never would have been framed. He had no ambition to accept this position and tried to avoid the responsibility of it. He scarcely participated in the debates, but at times when it seemed almost certain that an agreement could not be reached over some mooted question of principle, his wise counsel, his power over his colleagues, and their perfect faith in his disinterestedness and patriotism adjusted the difficulty and brought about a compromise. My reading of the events of those days constrains me to believe still further that had it not been for this tremendous power which Washington exercised over the people and the leaders, the constitution would not have been adopted by the States when it was submitted to them. All of these great men through faith in the intangible, unexplainable something in the character of Washington yielded their convictions to his judgment.

Washington was very human, and his friends were devotedly attached to him. He must have been very true to every one. He was thoughtful and considerate always of others, and it is interesting to read his private correspondence to friends and relatives, as these letters give an insight to his character.

He was a voluminous correspondent, and many of his private letters have been published. These letters give us in addition opportunities for contrasting the conditions of the first days of the republic with those of our time. Washington as President was beset with the perplexities and annoyances which are the accompaniment now of our chief executive. Even in the first days of the republic, citizens were not loath to hold office, and then as now the man more frequently sought the office than the office the man. In a letter to Joseph Jones, written on November 30th, 1789, Washington wrote:

"In every nomination to office I have endeavored, as far as my own knowledge extended, or information could be obtained, to make fitness of character my primary object. If with this the peculiar necessities of the candidate could be combined, it has been with me an additional inducement to the appointment."

In a letter to Catharine Macaulay Graham, written January 9, 1790, Washington gave his opinion of the new government in these words:

"That the government, though not actually perfect, is one of the best in the world, I have little doubt. I always believed that an unequivocally free and equal representation of the people in the legislature, together with an efficient and responsible Executive, was the great pillar on which the preservation of American freedom must depend."

While public receptions which our first President gave were not so frequent nor so largely attended as they are at present, yet even then they were somewhat irksome. It was complained of Washington that because he did not receive the people more often, and with less ceremony, that he was filled with pride. Washington referred to this in quite a long letter to his friend, David Stewart, on June 15, 1790. It may be interesting by way of comparison of the then and now, to quote from this letter. He said:

"In a letter of last year, to the best of my recollection, I informed you of the motives which compelled me to allot a day for the reception of idle and ceremonious visits (for it never has prevented those of sociability and friendship in the afternoon or at any other time); but if I am mistaken in this, the history of this business is simply and shortly as follows: Before the custom was established, which now accommodates foreign characters, strangers, and others, who, from motives of curiosity, respect to the chief magistrate, or any other cause, are induced to call upon me, I was unable to attend to any business whatsoever; for gentlemen, consulting their own convenience rather than mine, were calling from the time I rose from breakfast, often before, until I sat down to dinner. This, as I resolved not to neglect my public duties, reduced me to the choice of one of these alternatives, either to refuse them altogether, or to appropriate a time for the reception of them. The former would, I well knew, be digusting to many; the latter, I expect, would undergo animadversion and blazoning from those who would find fault, with or without cause. To please everybody was impossible. I therefore adopted that line of conduct which combined public advantage with private convenience, and which in my judgment was unexceptionable in itself. That I have not been able to make bows to the taste of Colonel B. (who, by the by, I believe never saw one of them) is to be regretted, especially too, as upon those occasions, they were indiscriminately bestowed, and the best I was master of. Would it not have been better to throw the veil of charity over them, ascribing their stiffness to the effects of age, or to the unskilfulness of my teacher, rather than to pride and dignity of office, which God knows has no charms for me? For I can truly say, I had rather be at Mount Vernon with a friend or two about me, than to be attended at the seat of government by the officers of State and representatives of every power in Europe.

"These visits are optional. They are made without invitation. Between the hours of three and four every Tuesday I am prepared to receive them. Gentlemen, often in great numbers, come and go, chat with each other, and act as they please. A porter shows them into the room, and they retire from it when they please, and without ceremony. At their first entrance, they salute me, and I them, and as many as I can talk to, I do. What pomp there is in this, I am unable to discover. Perhaps it consists in not sitting. To this, two reasons are opposed: First, it is unusual; secondly, which is a more substantial one, because I have no room large enough to contain a third of the chairs which would be sufficient to admit it. If it is supposed that ostentation, or the fashions of courts (which, by the by, I believe originate oftener in convenience, not to say necessity, than is generally imagined) gave rise to this custom, I will boldly affirm that no supposition was ever more erroneous; for, if I were to give indulgence to my inclinations, every moment that I could withdraw from the fatigue of my station should be spent in retirement. That it is not, proceeds from the sense I entertain of the propriety of giving to every one as free access as consists with that respect which is due to the chair of government; and that respect, I concesve, is neither to be acquired nor preserved but by observing a just medium between much state and too great familiarity."

Washington's farewell address to the people of the United States, delivered in September, 1796, which is being read in the Capitol in Washington today, was a fitting climax to his wonderful public career. It should be read and re-read on as many occasions as possible. It is as applicable today as when delivered. He warns us in that address against many dangers which he foresaw. In the most solemn manner he cautions succeeding generations against the baneful effects of the spirit of party. In these days when there is so much talk of our becoming a world power the words of Washington in this last address should be carefully studied. In it he said:

"The great rule of conduct for us, in regard to foreign nations, is, in extending our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible.

"'Tis our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world."

It seems as though Washington was ordained and set apart by a higher power to perform the great mission which gave to the world a government, which became at once and still remains the beacon light, the hope, the inspiration for all the peoples of the world who are struggling for liberty and for freedom of thought and conscience. In no other way can you satisfactorily account for the fact that he was the trusted guide who led these early patriots, equipped with such wonderful but diversified intellectual powers, through the seemingly insurmountable obstacle which confronted them, until he drew them safely into the possession of a free republic, the like of which the world has never known, and which rests on such stable foundations that time has strengthened rather than weakened our all but divine constitution.

The New Highway Bridge.

With the new Highway bridge across the Potomac open to traffic, the authorities of the District of Columbia are now trying to find a method to determine the number of passengers carried across the bridge by the Washington, Alexandria and Mt. Vernon Railway. The act of Congress authorizing the bridge specified that the railway should pay the District one-half a cent for every passenger carried across the river. There was no mention made as to the method of determining the number of passengers or the collection of the assessment. Mr. Darnielle, assessor of the District, yesterday recommended to the Commissioners that a bill be drawn which will require the car lines or line using the bridge to furnish sworn statements as to the number of passengers carried, and to make payment of the same to the District accordingly, as it would not be practicable for the District to station a man at the approach of the bridge and count the passengers on each car.

Alexandria Gazette
SIC SEMPER TYRANNIS
AND VIRGINIA ADVERTISER

FRIDAY EVENING. FEB. 23, 1906.

THERE is apparently a wide difference of opinion between the Virginia and Maryland conferees on the joint oyster commission, as to what was actually done in Richmond that week with reference to bringing about uniformity of laws between the two States. Some of the Marylanders are seemingly of opinion that the body decided to close dredging in the Potomac river for a period of two years, but the Virginians do not take this view as a body. While they are divided, the division is even, and four of them claim that the proposition, in accordance with all parliamentary practice, was lost on the tie vote which was had. They will therefore make no report on this question to the Virginia legislature. Delegate George Mason, of Westmoreland, not only takes this view, but on yesterday arose in the House to a question of personal privilege and protested against a report in an afternoon paper, which put the committee in the attitude of having voted to close the river for two years. Senators Walker and Gunter and Mr. Rex are of the same mind and faith, while the other four Virginians, Messrs. Taliaferro, Green, Thornhill and Dickinson, voted in the affirmative, and claim the river is and ought to be closed by the action taken. The Richmond Times-Dispatch says:

Indeed, according to Virginia members, the conference amounted to but little, the only matter upon which there was united action having been to recommond legislation looking to increasing penalties for the violation of existing dredgings. It is true the conference decided to recommend that the Virginia cull laws be made applicable to Maryland, but this will require no action by the Virginia legislature. The Virginia members of the conference do not view with any degree of seriousness, the bill of Senator Brewington, in the Maryland legislature, to stop dredging in the Chesapeake bay for two years, but they rather look upon it as a threat to get them on line for closing the Potomac. The upshot of the whole matter is that the two States are no nearer together on the oyster question today than when they tried for the first time many years ago to adjust it.

This is to be greatly regretted for it had been hoped that the long standing controversy between Maryland and Virginia over the oyster question would be settled this time and for ever.

THERE is no doubt that Congressman Slemp has the President hypnotized, so far as Virginia patronage is concerned. Notwithstanding the fiasco Col. Slemp made of his promise to the President to carry Virginia in last fall's election, the latter has been made to believe that the defeat was in fact a victory and turns down one after another old and tried republican to make places for Colonel Slemp's supporters. The displacement of Mr. Yost, as postmaster at Staunton, and the appointment of Mr. Thomas as postmaster at Abingdon are the latest proofs of this assertion. Mr. Thomas served as assistant secretary to Republican State Chairman C. B. Slemp during the last Virginia campaign, and had the indorsement of Congressman Slemp and Collector Summers for the position of postmaster at Abingdon. The appointment was delayed somewhat by the earnest fight which Miss Rosa Rose, the incumbent, made to be reappointed. She was indorsed by many of the leading business men of Abingdon and the surrounding country and had made an excellent postmaster. There was no reason why she should be ousted except to make room for a faithful lieutenant of Congressman Slemp.

ANOTHER miners' strike seems inevitable, notwithstanding the recent hopeful utterances said to have emanated from the operators and operatives. The relations between the labor leaders and mine owers are strained, and, so far as can be seen, there is no likelihood of an amicable adjustment of the issues at stake. Such conditions are to be regretted, as a large percentage of the country will be the victims in the event of a strike. Coal is a necessity. Its scarcity affects the inmates of every house, many of whom are in no condition to pay high prices for anything. The operators, anticipating a strike, have amassed enormous banks of coal at different points. Prices in the event of a cessation of mining, will steadily advance until coal will eventually become a luxury beyond the reach of any but the opulent. The earth has been stored with fuel for the use of man, and it seems hard that any set of men—be they operators or labor leaders—should assume to close mines at their own sweet will and thus deprive their fellow-beings of necessities provided for man by the Creator himself.

From Washington.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]

Washington, Feb. 23.

The democratic members of the Senate committee on interstate commerce this morning, in a conference at which several other democratic Senators were present, decided that they would vote as a unit on a resolution for the report of the railroad rate bill as it passed the House without committing any member of the committee to its support, or against it. The idea of the democrats is that it is a waste of time to consider the bill further in the committee in view of the well demonstrated fact that the real legislation will have to be framed on the floor of the Senate.

Senator Knox's bill for the regulation of interstate commerce, which he introduced yesterday as a solution of the railroad rate problem, is not, it is said, an administration measure as many believe, and does not represent the views of President Roosevelt. Instead of voicing the President's sentiments, Mr. Knox's bill stands for a course of procedure that the President has "turned down." It is understood that the reason Senator Knox introduced his bill is found in the fact that the President refused to accept the amendment to the Hepburn bill which he brought to the White House a few days ago. Had the President agreed to the amendment in question Mr. Knox would not have offered the bill in the Senate yesterday. It is understood that Mr. Knox left the White House in a very warm frame of mind, declaring that rather than allow his amendment to be edited, as the President is said to have suggested, he asserted that he'd father none at all. But as he was anxious to make public his views on the great question he decided to incorporate them in a bill which he know would have slim chance of getting through. It is said that the introduction of Mr. Knox's bill was as much of a surprise to the President as it was to the members of the Senate.

The crucial period in the consideration of the railroad rate legislation by the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission was reached this morning. According to agreement the committee met at 10:30 to begin the final work of perfecting the measure which it will report to the Senate. The bill which is under consideration is the Hepburn bill as it came from the House. There are more than a hundred amendments pending, all of which are to be voted upon today if it is a physical possibility to do so. The desire is to complete the bill this week so that it may be reported to the Senate when it meets again Monday morning. Senators Elkins, Aldrich, Kean, Foraker and Crane, members of the committee, have agreed to abandon the propositions they have submitted and to accept the plan proposed by Senator Knox in his bill introduced yesterday which provides for full review by the courts. The President's view that a rate fixed by the commission shall remain in effect during the judicial proceedings is supported by Senators Dolliver and Clapp. Senator Cullom, who is absent, also agrees with this position. The democrats of the committee occupy a middle ground. They have agreed to support an amendment for judicial review but insist that the rate of the commission must remain in effect pending the court's decision.

During the discussion in the committee this morning Senator Dolliver produced a letter from Senator Cullom asking him to record his vote for the Hepburn bill as it passed the House without amendment. Senator Dolliver thereupon moved that a vote should be taken at once on the question of reporting the Hepburn bill without amendment and with a favorable recommendation. This being in opposition to the agreement which the democrats had reached among themselves, to vote to report the bill without any recommendation at all, a recess was taken to enable the democrats to have another conference. The committee will meet again at two o'clock. The democrats in the meantime are conferring in Senator Tillman's room.

The reason for the democratic contention that the bill should be reported without any recommendation was developed in the committee. It appears that Senator Foster and Carmack favor the incorporation of a provision for judicial review. The democrats being thus divided, they concluded the best way would be to vote to report the bill without committing any body to its support.

The Senate committee on interstate commerce this afternoon decided to report favorable to the Senate the Hepburn bill as it came from the House, without amendment, reserving the right of members of the committee to offer amendments on the floor of the Senate. The vote stood 8 to 5.

Fifty-ninth Congress.

Washington, Feb. 23.

SENATE.

The Senate was not in session today having adjourned yesterday until Monday.

HOUSE.

Immediately after the reading of the journal Mr. Townsend, of Michigan, asked for unanimous consent for the consideration of the Tillman resolution, as amended by the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce, so as to provide for an investigation of railroad monopolies in coal and oil. "This resolution is believed to be a result of the conviction of the public that the railways are inflicting a wrong on the American people," Mr. Townsend began. He explained the provisions of the resolution at length; citing the features of the Gillespie, Campbell and Senator Tillman resolutions embodied in the one now before the House. The investigation, he promised, would be prompt, speedy and effective, outlining the evils which are just now the subject of such bitter popular complaint.

The House at one o'clock, without a dissenting vote, passed the Tillman joint resolution as amended.

The casket was opened, and Mulligan, fully restored to consciousness, sat up and inquired where he was. He had been in a trance for three days.

Secretary of War Taft delivered an address in Chicago yesterday in which he expressed the belief that the standing army should be 100,000 strong and that an efficient reserve should be organized. He said: "In this republic we need an army for three purposes: First, as an essential to any satisfactory system of national defense; second, as an indispensible instrument in carrying out our established international policy; third, which I may say is the least important function, the suppression of insurrection and civil strife."

Lillian Thornman, aged thirteen, attempted to burn to death the three-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dorsey, of York, Pa., yesterday. While the mother was absent from the house, the girl placed the child on a red-hot stove, with its face downward. The screams of the little one brought an aunt to its rescue and saved it from an excruciating death. The Thornman girl was arrested and committed to jail. When asked why she burned the child, she said: "It was because I had the devil in me." The girl confessed to having burned three other children in a similar manner.

While a Chicago stock company was playing at the theater at Linton, Ind., last night, Miss Pearl Elvin, a member of the troupe, made several slighting remarks about the town, which some of the audience applauded and others hissed. A man in the rear of the house rose with an oath, drew a revolver and, aiming it at the actress, fired. The bullet struck Miss Elvin in the leg and she fell to the floor. In an instant the house was in an uproar. The person who did the shooting managed to escape from the theater and to conceal his identity. Miss Elvin's wound is not serious, the ball having penetrated the fleshy part of her calf.

Phillip Browne Brooks, a negro physician of Washington, was arrested last night for investigation in connection with the robbery of his own home at 318 Third street, southwest. His wife, who was choked and partly chloroformed by the supposed robber, told the police she believed her husband tried to kill her so he could marry a white woman. Edna Russell, twenty-eight years old, was also arrested and is held for investigation. Brooks's wife is considerably older than he is, and is wealthy. She declared that her husband had beaten her numerous times, and that she was recently confined in a hospital suffering from a broken rib at his hands. An attempt was made Wednesday night by unknown persons after adjournment of court to blow up Floyd courthouse with dynamite. The charge was set off at the rear of the building and within forty feet of the county jail. The explosion tore a hole about three feet wide in the wall just behind the judge's seat. Judge Moffett had just granted bail to Fred Hoback, who secured a new trial through the Supreme Court for the killing of John L. Jett, a hotel keeper, more than a year ago. He was sentenced to eight years in the State penitentiary, but the verdict of the lower court was set aside. Hoback's friends think the dynamite was intended for him, and much bitter feeling has been aroused.

THE LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

The Senate yesterday, without dissent, passed the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac merger bills. They authorize a new charter for this road, the sale of the State's interests in the road and permission to merge with other lines. The objection to one of the original bills was obviated by changing it so that the law would apply only to roads in which the State owned an interest and as the State owns no interest in other road, it applied only to the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac, and did not become a general law, as at first intended, as soon as the members were satisfied that the State's interests were safeguarded and that the new law would cause no complications with other roads, all opposition faded. The bills now go to the House for consideration.

A contest occurred over the creation of a new judicial circuit of Rappahannock, Fauquier and Loudoun, relieving the pressure on the Alexandria circuit. The bill passed in the face of the bitter opposition of the Senator from Fauquier and Loudoun, Maj. Lynn. The bill also provides for two other new circuits, the Twenty-fifth, composed of Rockingham, Madison and Green, and the Twenty-seventh, comprising Scott, Buchanan and Russell counties. The Rappahannock, Fauquier and Loudoun circuit is known at the Twenty-sixth.

The depleted condition of the Virginia fisheries, to which attention was largely attracted by Delegate Gaines's resolution calling for an inquiry, will be investigated, but not by the legislature, which already is overburdened with investigations. His resolution was reported from the committee yesterday with an amendment which authorizes the new State Board of Fisheries to make the investigation. Senator Walker's bill to prohibit nonresidents from ownership in Virginia fisheries and Delegate Rew's oyster bill were also favorably reported.

Speaker Cardwell named Messrs. Byrd, Early and Johnston on the joint committee to investigate the Corporation Commission matters. The committee met yesterday afternoon and elected R. E. Byrd chairman. The witnesses to be summoned are the three members of the Corporation Commission then in office and the three clerks—Messrs. Lanier, Newby and Tyler—who were dismissed. Much of the evidence is documentary and will be read to the committee.

A resolution was introduced in the House putting oil pipe lines under the classification of common carriers. Mr. Gilbert, of Kentucky, attacked the ship-subsidy bill that recently passed the Senate; Gen. Grosvenor replied briefly to Mr. Gilbert and others and was received with applause. In accordance with his annual custom, Minority Leader Williams sought to have the House either listen to the reading of Washington's Farewell Address or adjourn in honor of the day. He was unsuccessful in both attempts.

The House is considering the Torrens bill as the special order and will defeat it almost certainly when the debate is over.

Hoch, the Wife Murderer, Hanged.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Hoch, the convicted wife-murderer, was to have been hanged at 10:30 o'clock this morning, but the execution was postponed for an hour in order to allow the condemned man's counsel an opportunity to file a petition in the United States Court a petition asking interference on the ground that the proposed execution would violate the fourteenth amendment. Judge Landis denied the writ, and when the news was conveyed to Hoch he said: "I will not go to the gallows. I will resist with physical force all efforts to take my life."

Just as preparations for reading the death warrant were completed, Attorney Comerford appeared on the scene waving an appeal bond duly signed and demanding a further stay of execution. The appeal was from the decision of Judge Landis denying a writ of habeas corpus. The wardens found themselves in such a quandary that they sent for State's Attorney Healy and his assistants. In the meantime things were in abeyance. Hoch then eat a big dinner in an unconcerned manner, and enjoyed every morsel as though he expected to eat many meals.

It was finally decided by the authorities to proceed with the execution, and Hoch was conducted to the gallows. He made a speech on the gallows saying: "I want to say something. Lord forgive them for they know not what they do. I die an innocent man. Good bye." The trap was sprung at 1:34½ p. m.

Madrid, Feb. 23.—It has just transpired that King Alfonso has ordered from the court jeweler as a wedding present to Miss Alice Roosevelt a richly jeweled bracelet, bearing the motto "Without Rancor." Alfonso showed the bracelet to his mother, who tried to influence the king to change his mind and not to send it. King Alfonso insisted, however, until Premier Moret forcibly interfered and told the king that the present might be interpreted an inopportune act, and that the government was unable to assume any responsibility in the matter. Alfonso then desisted, after telling Premier Moret that he was missing an opportunity of proving to America that the Spaniards are as gallant friends as they are noble enemies.

Echoes of the Parade.

It is generally agreed that yesterday's celebration of George Washington's birthday in Alexandria was one of the most successful within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. There is but one event in the history of the city to compare with it—the sesqui-centennial in 1899. Never on any previous occasion had so many people been seen in Alexandria. It is thought, however, that equally as many visited the city yesterday.

Trains and boats began to bring people here early in the day, and between ten and twelve o'clock there was a sea of humanity on King street. Electric trains, overflowing with passengers were entering the city every few minutes, adding enormously to the floating population, while the ferry steamer Woodbury was literally landing passengers by the thousands.

After the pageant had disbanded the visitors took the electric cars and the boat for their homes. Train followed train, crowded to their fullest capacity, and for over three hours crowded cars were passing out of the city. Toward the close of the day Washingtonians, eager to return home, boarded incoming trains at Payne street and other stations in order to secure seats on the return trips. The cars in many cases were therefore overcrowded before they reached the Royal street station where four or five hundred people were waiting for transportation.

The steamer Woodbury made trips between this city and Washington at 7, 8 and 9 o'clock, which proved to be a great accommodation to the many visitors.

The concert by the Naval Gun Factory Band, at the reviewing stand at the northwest corner of King and Alfred streets, was listened to by a large audience. The band was under the direction of Prof. Moody. The music was entrancing and was greatly enjoyed by who heard it.

The annual observance of the day by Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons was held in the Masonic Temple. Mr. K. Kemper, Grand Master of Masons of Virginia, paid the lodge an official visit.

Clad in genuine buckskin Indian costume the two young sons of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Prosise, of Alexandria county, mounted upon Indian ponies, rode with Osceola Tribe of Red Men in the procession yesterday and attracted much attention.

In the list of those who entertained visitors yesterday during the celebration the name of Mayor Paff was inadvertently omitted.

A number of flags and pieces of bunting used in decorations were stolen from the front of several buildings last night.

The hatchet in the hand of the figure of the Indian in front of Capt. George Young's store on King street was stolen and carried off last night.

Conservative estimates give the number of strangers in the city yesterday at between 12,000 and 15,000.

When the members of the Marine Corps marched off the steamer yesterday they were headed by 35 pieces of the Marine Band.

The executive committee of the celebration association today conferred with the ladies of the Associated Charities and turned over to them 750 sandwiches left over from the entertainments of yesterday.

Notwithstanding the large number of visitors in the city yesterday and the fact that nearly all residents were on the streets, there were but few disorders and they were of a trivial nature. The police force exercised proper diligence and generally stopped disputes or other evidences of trouble before anything serious followed.

The horse ridden by Major Wm. M. Smith, chief marshal of the parade, fell on Lee street, in front of the First National Bank, shortly before the formation of the procession. The major was caught under the horse and his right ankle was sprained by the accident, and one of his knees bruised. He, however, remounted and later rode at the head of the procession. Dr. Purvis later rendered the necessary surgical assistance.

Sent to the Chain Gang.

Among the cases before Justice Caton in the Police Court this morning was that of a young white man named George Elmore, who had been arrested by Special Officer Charles Smith charged with snatching a pocketbook from a lady in front of the Elkton Hotel yesterday afternoon. The officer witnessed the act and pursued Elmore, who ran in the front door of the Elkton and passed out of the rear. The officer followed and soon captured the fugitive. The latter resisted arrest and was knocked down twice before he allowed himself to be taken into custody. In his flight Elmore dropped the pocketbook or disposed of it in some way, as it could not be found on the prisoner when he was searched. The accused was sent to the chain gang for sixty days.

The Garside Stock Company.

The Coatsville Daily Union has the following to say regarding the J. S. Garside Stock Company, which will appear at the Opera House for a week, commencing next Monday night: "The Garside Stock Company playing at the Opera House is the best organization of its kind we ever had here and are giving the best satisfaction. The individual work of the company last night was very satisfactory. Special mention is due Miss Seymour, Mr. Garside, George Warren, Ernest Bostwick, Edward Curtiss, Dot E. Jewell, Miss Barouch and and Miss DeBarr. 'Under Two Flags' will be presented tonight and they who witness it will no doubt see a good play, splendidly acted, as the work of this company has been uniformally good and equal to the plays."

Concert.

A concert will be given next Monday evening at Confederate Veterans' Hall for the benefit of St. Paul's Church to aid in purchase of vestments for the choir. A number of leading vocalists from this city and Washington will assist.

Masonic.

As has been the custom for many years past, Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons last night celebrated the birthday of George Washington, one of the past masters of the lodge, in an appropriate manner. The usual banquet was dispensed with and other features were substituted, through refreshments were served during the evening and none went away dissatisfied. The lodge hall was crowded, many visiting Masons, including over fifty from Philadephia, being present.

After the usual formalities the Master of the lodge, Mr. L. Ruben, welcomed the visitors and stated that the lodge would received Grand Master of Masons in Virginia K. Kemper and District Deputy Grand Master R. W. Purvis, both past masters of the lodge, would also present during the evening "six past masters' jewels to the six past masters of the lodge who had not before received such jewels.

Past Master E. T. Downham, of Andrew Jackson Lodge, was then called upon to present Messrs. Kemper and Arnold, which he did in a graceful and appropriate speech.

The master then on behalf of the lodge, received Grand Master Kemper and D. D. G. M. Arnold, the former making a happy response to the greeting.

Judge J. K. M. Norton then gave a brief but interesting sketch of the lodge in presenting the six past masters' jewels and at the close of his remarks handed the jewels to Past Master W. A. Moore, sr., who was master of lodge in 1871. Judge Norton, also on behalf of Past Master W. M. Smith (who was unable to be present), presented to the master a beautiful jewel, to be the property of the lodge and worn hereafter by its masters. The master in a fitting speech accepted the jewel on behalf of the lodge. The jewel, which is a very handsome one was the Past Grand Masters jewel worn by the late F. A. Reed At the death of the latter it was presented to the late A. W. Armstrong and at his death to Dr. W. M. Smith. The latter now presents it to Alexandria-Washington Lodge to be owned by the lodge forever. The master then requested Dr. C. T. Lindsay, Past Master of Potomac Lodge, of Georgetown, to make the individual presentation of the six past masters jewels which he did in an impressive manner. Those honored were W. A. Moore, sr., A. G. Uhler, K. Kemper, J. R. Chapman, W. M. Smith and W. R. Purvis.

Lieutenant Governor J. T. Ellyson then made a speech, taking Washington as his theme, and on behalf of the lodge presented certificates of life membership to the Masonic Home at Richmond to Mr. J. S. Douglas and Dr. W. R. Purvis, who expressed their appreciation of the compliment paid them by the lodge.

The business of the lodge was then closed and a beautiful buffet lunch was served in the lodge banquet hall by the ladies of the Junior Daughters of the Mary Custis Lee Chapter U. D. C.

After all had enjoyed the refreshments D. D. G. M. Arnold stated that a representative of the lodge had been sent to Liberty Lodge of Beverly, Massachusetts, what was also celebrating Washington's birthday, and read the telegrams of fraternal greeting which had been exchanged between the two lodges.

A letter was then read from C. M. Koones, of Hot Springs, Ark., stating that he had been made a mason in this lodge fifty years ago and asking if any of the old members of the lodge, were living. The master for the information of the lodge stated that so far as he knew the only members of the lodge now living who were made masons fifty years ago were Brothers J. S. Douglas, W. A. Moore, and W. H. Lambert.

A letter of regret from Gov. Swanson was read, after which Judge C. E. Nicol was introduced and responded to the sentiment. "The Day we Celebrate." He was followed by Horace B. Douglas, of Philadelphia, on behalf of a large delegation of Philadelphia masons present.

Past Master J. E. Alexander, then spoke on behalf of Andrew Jackson Lodge and then a letter of regret from Past Master W. H. Lambert, who was visting in St. Louis, was read. Short addresses were then made by Past Master J. R. Chapman and Rev. C. E. Ball.

Shortly before midnight the festivities came to a close after a most enjoyable evening spent by the large assemblage present.

Alarms of Fire.

The alarm of fire yesterday was caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove in a house on north Pitt street.

THE CURTIN MURDER.

George Patterson and Stephen Davis Arrested Today on Suspicion of Being Parties to the Murder.

As had been anticipated in the Gazette, the authorities made another movement today in connection with the murder of George R Curtin on the morning of the 24th of last December.

Information has been secured which leads to the belief that the unfortunate man met his death in a house not far from the spot where he was last seen, and it is believed that evidence can be produced which will show where he was killed and how his clothing was disposed of.

A warrant was sworn out today against George Patterson, proprietor of the Tontine Hotel, who is suspected of being a party to the murder.

Chief Webster and Officer Roberts repaired to Patterson's place of business, put him under arrest and locked him up in a cell in the station house.

Later a warrant was sworn out against Stephen Davis charging him with being a party to the murder. He was subsequently arrested by Officers Jones and and Mayhugh.

While Chief Webster and Officer Roberts were engaged in searching for evidence against the parties a glass-blower named Partelle became officious and his conduct finally savored of interference with the officers, when Mr. Roberts placed him under arrest.

Vierkorn; instrumental duet, "Last Rose of Summer" and "Annie Laurie," Mr. Jameson and Miss Thomas; speech of welcome, Rev. J. A. Hutchison. Reception of new members.

A Wife's Charge.

Stephen Davis was brought before Justice Caton in the Police Court this morning on complaint of his wife, Fannie Davis, who alleged that the prisoners threatened to kill her. The couple have rooms in the Braddock House. Davis secured Mr. C. C. Carlin as counsel, and, at the latter's request, the case was continued until next Monday morning. The accused was released to appear at that time, his counsel becoming his surety. He was, however, subsequently re-arrested on suspicion of being a party to the murder of George R. Curtin.

Anxious Ice Operators.

Saratoga, N. Y., Feb. 23.—The continued February thaw and the fact that less than fifty per cent. of the ice required has been cut and housed, causes ice operators much anxiety. The recent heavy snowfall has been converted into surface waters, which submerged most of the ice fields to the depth of over one foot and compelled a general cessation of all ice cutting operations. Lumber interests are also badly affected by the unseasonable weather. The mercury marked 30 degrees at daybreak.

Startling But True.

People the world over were horrified on learning of the burning of a Chicago theater in which nearly six hundred people lost their lives, yet more than five times this number, or over 3,000 people died from pneumonia in Chicago during the same year, with scarcely a passing notice. Every one of these cases of pneumonia resulted from a cold and could have been prevented by the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. A great many who had every reason to fear pneumonia have warded it off by the prompt use of this remedy. The following is an instance of this sort: "Too much cannot be said in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and especially for colds and influenza. I know that it cured my daughter, Laura, of a severe cold, and I believe saved her life when she was threatened with pneumonia," W. D. WILCOX, Logan, New York. Sold by Gibson & Timberman and W. F. Creighton & Co.

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an automizer, is an unspeakable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to cure. HOSPITALS CROWDED

MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Saves Many From this Sad and Costly Experience.

It is a sad but certain fact that every year brings an increase in the number of operations performed upon women in our hospitals. More than three-fourths of the patients lying on those snow-white beds are women and girls who are awaiting or recovering from operations made necessary by neglect.

Every one of these patients had plenty of warning in that bearing down feeling, pain at the left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, pelvic catarrh, dizziness, flatulency, displacements or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female organs, and if not heeded the trouble may make headway until the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation, and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at best, while in many cases the results are fatal.

Miss Luella Adams, of Seattle, Wash., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"About two years ago I was a great sufferer from a severe female trouble, pains and headaches. The doctor prescribed for me and finally told me that I had a tumor and must undergo an operation if I wanted to get well. I felt that this was my death warrant, but I spent hundreds of dollars for medical help, but the tumor kept growing. Fortunately I corresponded with an aunt in the New England States, and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was said to cure tumors. I did so and immediately began to improve in health, and I was entirely cured, the tumor disappearing entirely, without an operation. I wish every suffering woman would try this great preparation."

Just as surely as Miss Adams was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure other women who suffer from female troubles, inflammation, kidney troubles, nervous excitability or nervous prostration.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all young women who are ill to write her for free advice. She is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.
